229 Graduates Receive Bachelor's Degrees

Carl A. Koval of Mount Wolf, Pa., headed the class of 1974 with a perfect 4.0 or "straight A" academic average during his four years at Juniata.

Koval, a chemistry major who will do graduate work at California Institute of Technology, is one of three students who qualified for summa cum laude honors this spring with cumulative academic averages of 3.9 or better. The others are Stephen M. Sachs of Mount Union, Pa., a biology major, and H. Christopher Peterson of Mifflin, Pa., a political science major.

Juniata President John N. Stauffer conferred bachelor's degrees on 229 graduating seniors at commencement exercises May 26. Ninety were awarded the bachelor of arts degree and 139 received the bachelor of science.

Recipients of honorary degrees were Dr. William W. Hassler '39, the doctor of laws, and G. Edwin Brumbaugh, doctor of humane letters.

Dr. Hassler is president of Indiana University of Pennsylvania and also serves currently as president of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities.

Brumbaugh, an architect specializing in the restoration of historical buildings, is a son of Martin Grove Brumbaugh, governor of Pennsylvania from 1915 to 1919 and president of Juniata from 1894 to 1910 and again from 1924 to 1930.

G. Edwin Brumbaugh also designed the Cloisters, a men's dormitory at Juniata.

The commencement address was given by Dr. Jaroslav Pelikan, acting dean of the Yale Graduate School and author of more than a dozen books on Christian history.

His address, which received numerous compliments, was entitled "A Vocation for the College." It concluded Juniata's year-long emphasis on the theme of vocation.

In the wake of Watergate, American colleges have "the vocation of contributing to a recovery of character," Dr. Pelikan remarked.

He said the declining influence of the family and the church have made it more necessary than ever for colleges to confront their students with moral issues while at the same time rejecting the kind of hypocritical "moralism" used recently to defend illegal governmental activities.

In addition, he noted that other vocations of the college are "instilling an appreciation of tradition that is compatible with a liberation from the tyranny of the past" and "a special attitude toward the intellectual life, a combination of respect for reason with a profound affirmation of the irrational."

"The college has a unique opportunity to give leadership to the university" in the latter respect, he added.

The promotions of three faculty members were announced at commencement. Dr. Robert P. Zimmerer advances from associate professor to professor of biology, Dr. Donald T. Hartman from assistant to associate professor of philosophy, and Mrs. Marie-Jose Fassiotto from instructor to assistant professor of French.

The Beachley Distinguished Professor Award for 1974 was presented to Dr. Klaus Kipphan, associate professor of history. The award, which includes a $1,000 stipend, was established by Donovan R. Beachley, Sr., alumnus and trustee, and by Mr. and Mrs. Donovan R. Beachley, Jr., all of Hagerstown, Md.

Principal participants in the 1974 commencement exercises were (left to right) G. Edwin Brumbaugh, awarded the doctor of humane letters degree; Juniata President John N. Stauffer; Dr. Jaroslav Pelikan, who delivered the address, and Dr. William W. Hassler '39, recipient of the doctor of laws degree.

He was a great admirer of Miss Wald, who founded a visiting nursing service and a settlement house in the poverty-stricken Lower East Side of Manhattan. Widely known as a crusader for various government reforms and services, she befriended Rabinowitz as a boy and years later he waged a tireless campaign to have her named to the Hall of Fame Great Americans at New York University. His efforts were successful in 1970 when she was selected over other illustrious candidates such as Franklin D. Roosevelt, George Washington Carver and Louis D. Brandeis. Among the memorabilia of Rabinowitz and Miss Wald in the library room dedicated to them are graphite portraits (above) drawn from photographs by Alexander McBride, assistant professor of art.

Dr. Miles to Assume Presidency at Bridgeport

Dr. Leland Miles '46 returns to the University of Bridgeport (Conn.) in August to become its fifth president.

He had served as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, the largest of the university's six colleges, from 1964 until 1967.

During those three years, he initiated graduate programs leading to the master of arts and master of science degrees, established departments of philosophy and theatre arts, and founded a student advisory committee to the dean which is still active.

Then he left to become president of Alfred University in southwestern New York state and served in the latter capacity for seven years. Alfred experienced substantial growth during his administration, increasing its enrollment from 1,700 to 2,400 full and part-time students.

In addition, Alfred embarked last year on a $30 million program of construction and "academic advancement" continuing until 1986 when the university will celebrate its 150th anniversary.

The University of Bridgeport has some 500 faculty members and more than 8,500 students (full and part-time, undergraduate and graduate). It also has Colleges of Business Administration, Education, Engineering, Nursing and a Junior College.

It was founded as the Junior College of Connecticut in 1927 and was chartered as a four-year university in 1947.

Before he joined the University of Bridgeport for the first time in 1964, Dr. Miles had taught English at Hanover College in Indiana and at the University of Cincinnati. He also was chairman of the department at Hanover and director of English programs at Cincinnati.

He holds both the master of arts and Ph.D. Degrees from the University of North Carolina and has written or edited numerous articles, essays, reviews and several books, primarily on British and American literature and history.

Encouraging Developments

Student Effort Raises $32,000

Students committed more than $32,000 to the Juniata College Centennial Fund as they conducted the first organized phase of the overall Centennial campaign, designed to raise $5 million by 1976.

Some 165 student volunteers contacted their fellow students in April, seeking modest pledges ($10 or more annually for a five-year period). The pledges are not payable until after each of the student donors graduates.

James Gerek, junior from Stroudsburg, Pa., headed the campaign. Gerek, a student representative to the Board of Trustees, announced the results at the May 11 meeting of the board.

Charles C. Ellis '40, general chairman of the Centennial Fund, expressed his gratitude to Gerek and commented that "few small colleges in the country have ever had such participation by students in a capital gifts campaign."

Juniata's future is in good hands, he concluded.

The funds from the student campaign will be used to endow scholarships named for the contributing classes.

CURRY BEQUESTS

Bequests of $30,000 and $20,000 from the estate of Irene S. Curry of Frankstown Township, Blair County, have been added to Juniata's endowment fund. The income from the bequests will be used to establish scholarships in the name of Mrs. Curry and her husband, the late Robert D. Curry.

JOHNS-MANVILLE GRANT

Juniata has received a materials grant valued at $2,000 from the Johns-Manville Corp. The materials were insulating firebricks and mortar used to construct a kiln for instruction in ceramics.

Students, Knox Honored at All-Sports Banquet

A dozen students at Juniata, plus one big name from its past, were honored last month at the 12th annual All-Sports Banquet.

Chuck Knox, a 1954 graduate (see February Bulletin), received the Alumni Achievement Award. Knox, head coach of the Los Angeles Rams, became the youngest alumnus to win the four-year-old award.

A pair of seniors, Huntingdon's Mike McNeal and Dillsburg's Verne Wetzel, each captured two of 14 student trophies.

McNeal, an all-conference pick and a Tribe co-captain in football and baseball, received the coveted Stanford Mickel Award. He also won, for the third straight year, the Charles E. Goodale alumni award as the most valuable baseball player.

Ms. Wetzel was judged the MVP in women's basketball and field hockey, receiving the Gayle and David Kreider and Thomas Robinson awards. Ms. Wetzel paced both teams during their initial varsity seasons.

The John E. Blood Memorial Award, given to a senior who has earned four letters and the highest academic average, went to Carl Koval, Mt. Wolf. The school-record-holder in the half-mile run, Koval had a perfect 4.0 in chemistry.

Other MVP's, listed with trophy donors, were Lou Eckerl (Sr., Baltimore): J. Harold Engle, football back; Sean Ryan (Jr., Bobtown): George L. Weber, football lineman; Greg Ransom (Fr., Chambersburg): C. Clifford Brown, cross country.

Also, Don Williams (So., Pittsburgh): Jack E. Oller, basketball; Myron Zimmerman (Sr., Ephrata): David L. Helsel, wrestling; Mike Slough: J. Foster Gehrett, track; Gavin Ford: Calvert N. Ellis, tennis; and Marty Dansbury: C. Blair Miller, golf.

In addition, Bob Zimmerman was recognized for special achievement in track (see other sports story).

Knox was cited for "confidence, pride, loyalty and integrity." Reacting to his selection he said "I've always felt that Juniata has done more for me than I could ever do for the school."

"The attitude was," Knox said of his student days, "that the school was there to help make the students as successful as it possibly could. I thought the concept unique, and we've carried it over in every-

Won 2 Lost 2

Teams Disappointing

When the curtain fell on the spring sports season, it ended a show of disappointments. The play, however, was not without its stars, and each act had its moments.

Dean Rossi's trackmen enacted perhaps the greatest tragedy since Hamlet. At 7-2 on the year, the Tribe was expected to defend its conference title with the drive of a Lady Macbeth. The Indians finished a lowly seventh, collecting 13 points.

Bob Zimmerman (Sr., Cherry Hill, N. J.) stole the show at the MAC's. Holder of the conference pole vault records indoor and out, Zimmerman took his fourth straight outdoor crown. With two indoor titles, he never lost a conference meet—a feat never managed before.

With Dan Bauscher (So., Wyomissing) third, and Bruce Bowen (Fr., Akron) fifth, Juniata took 10 points in the vault—best team performance in any event. Carl Koval was fourth in the 880, Mike Slough (Jr., Hummelstown) fifth in the quarter-mile.

Superstars Shine in Spring Sports Show

Slough alone had 13 points in 1973, but he and high-school teammate Kim Witmer, the Tribe's one-two scores for the year, both pulled muscles in the conference meet.

During the season Slough took firsts in seven different events, Witmer in six. Witmer set the only new school record, a 49.4 in the quarter.

Bill Berrier's cast found the script pretty tough in the early baseball stages, losing four games by five runs. But the Indians captured four of their final five, finishing 10-10.

A trio of seniors led the uphill charge: Mike McNeal, all-conference third baseman, hit .375; rightie Mark Amatucci, Baltimore, finished 5-0, best Tribe record ever; and shortstop Craig Palardy, Churchville, led the team in runs, total bases, doubles, homers and rbi.

On the links another senior was the leading man: Marty Dansbury, Yardley. Medalling in half the outings, he finished at 80.3 strokes per round. Bill Germann's squad was 6-7 and landed another disappointing conference place: 16th, poorest showing since 1966.

But Gavin Ford (So., Felicity, O.), number-one netman for Ernie Post, scored a Juniata MAC "first." He was seeded third and reached the tourney semifinals. He was 6-3 in singles this year but the Tribe was 2-7.

In women's tennis, Alice Herit (Fr., Williamsport) and Deb Worrall (So., Malvern), playing one and two, made coach Ray Pfrogner's debut a success. Each won three of four singles matches, cueing the team to a 2-2 first season.

GRID CAPTAINS NAMED

Seniors Sean Ryan, Bobtown, and Carmen DeFrancesco, Mt. Carmel, plus juniors Steve Lehman, Jersey Shore, and Dan Ereditario, Jeannette, will co-captain next year's Indian football squad. The seniors play offense, the juniors defense.
